1. Eligibility

- Open to artists aged 18 or over, at any stage of their career - worldwide.
- Artists may submit up to 5 works each. Up to 3 works per artist may be selected.
- Works must align with the theme Materiality, completed within the last three years.
- Acceptable mediums include printmaking, painting & mixed-media*.

**We welcome a wide range of techniques and materials within printmaking, painting, and mixed media practices. This can include – but is not limited to – concrete, sand, wood, paper, oil paint, acrylic, watercolour, pen, pencil, and all forms of printmaking.*

At No Place Art, we take an open and inclusive view of materiality. For us, Materiality refers not only to the physical substances used in a work but also to the processes and intentions behind its making – whether conceptual or physical.

- Artworks must be of original creation by the submitting artist.
- Artworks should not exceed the size of 2m x 2m including the frame.

2. The Theme: Materiality

Materiality is about the physical presence of a work of art - the substances it is made from, the way those materials behave, and how or why they contribute to meaning.

For this open call, Materiality invites artists to think about the role that materials play within their practice. Rather than being a passive medium, materials can be active collaborators: they carry history, texture, weight, fragility, resistance and transformation. They can influence how a work is made, how it is experienced, and what it communicates.

Artists might approach materiality through traditional media such as paint, clay, paper, metal, fabric or print processes, exploring the tactile qualities and physical language of these materials. Others may push materials beyond their expected uses – cutting, layering, eroding, burning, casting, stitching, or combining elements in new ways that challenge familiar forms.

Materiality can also be explored conceptually. A work might reflect on the origin of materials, their cultural significance, their environmental impact, or the labour involved in their production. Materials may be raw, refined, recycled, industrial, natural, found, or carefully fabricated. What matters is that the material choices are intentional and contribute meaningfully to the work.

We welcome a wide range of practices including painting, sculptural, photographic, printmaking, textiles, mixed media, and experimental processes. Works that emphasise surface, texture, structure, process, or transformation are particularly relevant to this theme.

Materiality can appear in subtle ways as well. It may be found in the layering of paint, the grain of wood, the density of ink on paper, the tension of stitched fabric, or the interaction between contrasting materials. It may also emerge through process – how a material changes when it is stretched, broken, melted, carved, woven, pressed, or repeated over time.

There is no single way to interpret the theme. Some artists may focus on the physical qualities of a material itself, while others may use materials to explore broader ideas about memory, place, identity, or the environment. Both direct and conceptual responses are welcome.

What we are looking for are works where the material is not incidental, but integral - where the choice of material helps shape the artwork's presence, form, and meaning.

Ultimately, Materiality encourages artists to consider a simple but powerful question: What role do your materials play in the story your work is telling?

If the materials in your work matter; physically, conceptually, or processually, then your practice likely sits comfortably within the theme.

3. Submission, Judges & Awards

- A non-refundable submission fee of £24 for the first artwork, £10 per each additional work.
- For Artists 24 and Under a non-refundable submission fee of £16.00 for the first artwork, £10.00 per each addition work.
- Up to 5 artworks may be submitted, but only 3 may be selected and exhibited.
- Digital submissions must include high-resolution JPEG images (Max 10MB) with file-names formatted as:

NameSurname_TitleOfWork.jpg.

- Works that do not match their submissions in condition or theme may be withdrawn at the discretion of the committee.
- All withdrawn works must be collected at the artist's expense
- If the selected works arrive damaged, with unacceptable framing, size discrepancies from the original submission, not as shown online, or in the opinion of the Selection Committee as not being in the spirit of printmaking, painting, mixed-media, or the theme Materiality, then these will be withdrawn. All withdrawn artworks will need to be collected from North London Framers by the artist at their expense. The decision of the Selection Committee is final and we are unable to offer feedback.

4. Presentation & Framing Guidelines

- Printmaking artworks must be suitably presented and professionally framed
  - Please note: While all works must be suitably framed, painters are not required to glaze their artworks with glass or perspex unless the work requires it for protection. Glazing is generally expected for printmakers and smaller, more delicate pieces.
  - Painters don't have to frame their artworks.
  - Frames must not include metal or clip mechanisms. Glazing should be picture glass. Perspex is acceptable.
  - Unframed prints will not be accepted or exhibited. Artists requiring framing support may contact North London Framers.
  - Received artworks must not have fixings attached. Hang It Services will install all required fixings.
  - Artists who choose to frame works independently must ensure frames meet these requirements. Non-compliant works may be rejected.
  - North London Framing offers a 15% discount for selected artists. If artists would like framing provided by North London Framers, they must deliver their artwork to North London Framing before 10th August 2026.
  - Framing costs are the responsibility of the artist.

5. Wrapping of Artworks

In order to reduce on plastic waste, save time on installation and de-installation, No Place Art has partnered with ArtPakk to offer selected artists 50% off their products.

- Artworks MUST be wrapped in either an ArtPakk fabric bag or a hand-made mylar/insulation bag. ArtPakk bags can be re-used for many other open-calls/ exhibitions offering artists a great opportunity to purchase a tool for their future artistic careers.
  - Works must arrive professionally packaged and ready for installation.

6. Sales

- All artworks must be for sale - price cannot be changed after selection without written agreement with No Place Art.
  - Artists set their own prices. The submitted price should include No Place Art's 30% commission and VAT if the artist is registered.
  - If a sale is made through No Place Art (before or during the exhibition, including the time until the 16th October 2026), it takes precedence over any private sale.
  - Private sales during this window will still incur the standard commission.
  - Artists will receive 70% of the final sale price.
  - Payments for sold artworks will be made within 30 days after the close of the exhibition.
  - Artists are responsible for managing any applicable VAT or tax declarations.
  - No minimum price is required, but pricing must reflect the artwork's value and exhibition context.
